ITT holds student awards competition

Students at ITT Technical Institute in Albany, N.Y., competed for awards in the annual ITT Technical Institute Tech Fest Competition on Thursday.

Tech Fest 2005, which was held at the school's Albany location, had the highest number of projects submitted so far, according to school officials. Student projects ranged from turning on lights using infrared technology and PDAs, and software to automate daily tasks.

Tech Fest participants were judged by representatives of Plug Power, MTI Instruments, Autotask, VersaTrans Solutions, AT&T Labs, HANYS, Eric Mower & Associates, Spiral Design Studio, Johnson Controls, and Senior Services of Albany.

"Outside of our quarterly graduations, Tech Fest is the highlight of our year and the opportunity to see our students use their skills to change the world," said Bettyjo Bouchey, dean of ITT Tech.
